History 100:129: Introduction to Modern Jewish History

Course Description:
An examination of the history of Jews over the past three hundred years. Explores the dramatic encounter at the close of the 18th century between rapidly changing European societies caught up in intellectual, political, and economic revolution and a 2000-year old traditional civilization living in their midst; the kaleidoscopic array of Jewish political, religious, cultural and social responses to this encounter; the new forms of Jewish communal and individual life and consciousness which emerged in the course of the 19th and 20th centuries; the extension of this new modern framework to the Jews of the Middle East in the context of European imperialism and colonialism; the key roles played by the Jews as agents and symbols of political, economic, and cultural modernity; the phenomenon of anti-Semitism and whether it is a pathology or integral part of modern civilization; the massive shifts in Jewish life from the mid-20th century in light of the Holocaust, the creation of the state of Israel, and full integration into American society. Extensive use of primary sources allows students to develop their own analytical skills and syntheses; wide focus on the Jews of Western Europe, Eastern Europe, the Mediterranean, and beyond develops the essential skill of comparative analysis and provides a valuable perspective from which to view the larger, intertwined histories of these parts of the world.

Course Requirements and Grading: This course is primarily a lecture course, and much of the essential information and context will be communicated in the lectures, so attendance is mandatory and essential. Reading all assigned readings and communicating your understanding in the Friday section is equally essential, and section attendance is mandatory. The final decision on any grade derives from my global assessment of your work in consultation with the teaching assistants, and cannot be quantified exactly. Roughly speaking, however, the breakdown is as follows:

Two 3-4 page papers: 15% each
One 7-8 page final paper: 35%
Participation in section: 35%

No extensions will be granted without my prior permission, and late papers will be graded lower at the rate of one grade-step per day (A to A-, A- to B+, etc).

The last day a student can drop a class this semester is Friday, October 11.

Accommodations and Wellness:
Any student with a disability who may need accommodations in this class must obtain an accommodation letter from Student Disability Services, (410) 516-4720, studentdisabilityservices@jhu.edu

These are difficult times to be a student. If you are struggling with anxiety, stress, depression or other mental health related concerns, please consider using the JHU mental and emotional health resources. The resources are described and can be accessed at https://wellness.jhu.edu/resources/mental/

Ethics Policy: Needless to say, complete honesty and probity in your work is a must. The strength of the university depends on academic and personal integrity. In this course, you must be honest and truthful. Ethical violations include cheating on exams, plagiarism, reuse of assignments, improper use of the Internet and electronic devices, unauthorized collaboration, alteration of graded assignments, forgery and falsification, lying, facilitating academic dishonesty, and unfair competition. Report any violations you witness to the instructor. You may consult the associate dean of student conduct (or designee) by calling the Office of the Dean of Students at 410-516-8208 or via email at integrity@jhu.edu. For more information, see the Homewood Student Affairs site on academic ethics.

Family accommodation policy: You are welcome to bring a dependent family member to class on occasional days when your responsibilities require it (for example, if emergency child care is unavailable, or for health needs of a relative). In fact, you may see my children in class on days when their school is closed. Please be sensitive to the classroom environment, and if your family member becomes uncomfortably disruptive, you may leave the classroom and return as needed.

Classroom climate: We are committed to creating a classroom environment that values the diversity of experiences and perspectives that all students bring. Everyone here has the right to be treated with dignity and respect. I believe fostering an inclusive climate is important because research and my experience show that students who interact with peers who are different from themselves learn new things and experience tangible educational outcomes. Please join me in creating a welcoming and vibrant classroom climate. Note that you should expect to be challenged intellectually by me, the TAs, and your peers, and at times this may feel uncomfortable. Indeed, it can be helpful to be pushed sometimes in order to learn and grow. But at no time in this learning process should someone be singled out or treated unequally on the basis of any seen or unseen part of their identity. If you ever have concerns in this course about harassment, discrimination, or any unequal treatment, or if you seek accommodations or resources, I invite you to share directly with me or the TAs. I promise that we will take your communication seriously and to seek mutually acceptable resolutions and accommodations. Reporting will never impact your course grade. You may also share concerns with the department chair (Prof. Peter Jelavich, jelavich@jhu.edu) the Assistant Dean for Diversity and Inclusion (Darlene Saporu, dsaporu@jhu.edu), or the Office of Institutional Equity (owe@jhu.edu). In handling reports, people will protect your privacy as much as possible, but faculty and staff are required to officially report information for some cases (e.g. sexual harassment).

Religious holidays: Religious holidays are valid reasons to be excused from class. Students who must miss a class or an examination because of a religious holiday must inform the instructor as early in the semester as possible in order to be excused from class or to make up any work that is missed. If possible, try to avoid scheduling exams for major holidays. More information may be found at the Religious and Spiritual Life website (https://studentaffairs.jhu.edu/religious-spiritual-life/religious-holy-days/).
