Reformation and Counter-Reformation Europe

Course Overview and Objectives

This course explores the religious and political conflicts of “The Reformation” in sixteenth-century Europe. Though the course analyzes the writing of some of the most important figures of sixteenth-century religious reform from Luther to Calvin to Loyola, it also examines the relationship between those theologians and the laity, the role of the state in adopting reform, popular movements and crowd action, and calls for radical social transformation. The Catholic Church responded to the growth of Protestantism with a “Counter-Reformation,” culminating in the Council of Trent and Catholic missions by new religious orders, like the Jesuits. The course examines what it meant to participate in confessional culture or to become a “Counter-Reformation” saint in sixteenth century Europe.

This course has four major objectives:

- Understand the major themes and developments in Reformation-era Europe.
- Interpret and analyze primary sources in their historical contexts.
- Identify the arguments, evidence, and perspective presented in secondary sources.
- Develop and defend an argument using historical evidence.

Required Texts

Lyndal Roper, The Holy Household
Desiderius Erasmus and Martin Luther, Discourse on Free Will

All other course materials will be available on e-reserve.

Course Structure

Students will meet twice a week for a hybrid of lecture and discussion of the week’s readings, so attendance and participation is vital. The emphasis of the course and course discussion is discussion of the assigned primary source materials. Each student will be expected to lead discussion of one reading during the semester by preparing questions for the class, but students should be prepared to raise and respond to questions and participate in discussion throughout the course.
Assignments
Class attendance and participation
Leadership of discussion of one of the readings on an assigned week
Luther/Erasmus Debate
Short essay, 3-4 pages—students will write a short essay analyzing two of the following primary sources from the class: Erasmus, Luther, Müntzer, Zwingli.
Mid-term exam—exam will consist of several short-answer, identification prompts (sometimes called “IDs”) and one small timed essay.
Final Essay, 7-10 pages—students will engage with primary source materials from the second half of the course and produce a longer, analytical and argumentative essay as their final assignment for the course. Prompts to be provided by instructor or original essay topics can be developed in consultation with the instructor.

Grading
Final essay: 30%
Mid-term exam: 25%
Participation (including leading discussion): 20%
Luther/Erasmus debate assignment: 15%
Short paper: 10%

Johns Hopkins University has announced the default grading for the term will be S/US (satisfactory/unsatisfactory), unless requested otherwise by students. Please let me know if you are seeking a letter grade for the course.

Course Policies

Readings
Assigned readings should be completed by the start of the week for which they were assigned. Ultimately, it is the students’ responsibility to obtain the texts for this class, either from the libraries, electronic reserves, Barnes & Noble, or other means. Any trouble accessing one or more of the readings should be communicated to me the preceding week.

Participation:
Since this is a discussion-based class, I expect students to participate—that is, to raise questions as they have them; to respond to my questions and the questions and comments of colleagues; and to be alert and engaged. Students will also lead one class discussion and give a presentation of their final research papers. These forms of participation, in addition to punctuality and regular attendance, form 20% of the final grade.

Papers:
Papers should be turned in to me electronically by 11:59 PM Eastern on the days they are due. Late submission of term papers will be penalized. For those taking the class S/U, papers will receive an automatic US if students have not gotten in touch with me before deadline about why paper is late and when student expects to submit paper. For each day that the assignment fails to arrive, I will subtract half of a letter grade (e.g.: A- to B+). Extensions may be granted at my discretion, but students must contact me before the assignment is due. Plagiarism is a violation of academic integrity and is not tolerated in this course. For best practices on avoiding plagiarism, see plagiarism.org.

Ethical Requirements:
Here I endorse and apply the “Violations of Academic Integrity” paragraph of the KSAS and Whiting Undergraduate Academic Ethics Board:

Undergraduate students enrolled in the Krieger School of Arts and Sciences or the Whiting School of Engineering at the Johns Hopkins University assume a duty to conduct themselves in a manner appropriate to the University’s mission as an institution of higher learning. Students are obliged to refrain from acts which they know, or under circumstances have reason to know, violate the academic integrity of the University. Violations of academic ethics include, but are not limited to: cheating; plagiarism; submitting the same or substantially similar work to satisfy the requirements of more than one course without permission; submitting as one’s own the same or substantially similar work of another; knowingly furnishing false information to any agent of the University for inclusion in academic records; falsification, forgery, alteration, destruction or misuse of official University documents or seal.

Homewood Schools Policy on Disabilities:
If you are a student with a disability or believe you might have a disability that requires accommodations, please contact Student Disability Services at 410-516-4720 or in-person at 385 Garland Hall. Office of Student Disability Services, 385 Garland, (410) 516-4720 studentdisabilityservices@jhu.edu.

Counseling Center:
The University is aware that many students experience anxiety, depression, and other emotional challenges. If you would like to speak to a professional counselor, please visit the campus Counseling Center.
